

Adding Required Dependencies

Tests created with Unit Test Assistant may require additional dependencies to be set on the project's classpath. You can manually add additional libraries to your project or configure UTA to automatically add a container that includes all the required libraries. See the following sections for details:

- Automatically Adding the Required Libraries
- Configuring the Build System to Include Required Libraries